It is recognized that if the fleet has suceeded in getting out of the port and manages to evade the Japanese a new and serious situation will be created. The reports are

However, it is believed that Admiral Togo is aware of any moves of the Russian ships, and if they are outside he is keeping in touch with them to compel an action which, it is hoped, will be decisive. That Admiral Makaroff should make an attempt to get out is not regarded as improbable, as in the event of the Port Arthur fleet reaching Vladivostok the largest vessels could dock and it would have a base possessing sufficient defences. Such a forlorn hope might conceivably succeed, while the keeping of the fleet at Port Arthur is viewed as hopeless, involving its certain loss.

In unofficial quarters, where there is disposition to believe Admiral Makaroff got out last Friday night, it is said that the Vladivostok squadron also put to sea to meet the Port Arthur fleet, and news of a great battle is hourly expected. It is asserted that Admiral Togo has not divided his battleship squadron. He is resolved to keep six of his battleships together. STORY DOUBTED IN LONDON.

LONDON, March 16 .- The rumor of Port Arthur's fall has followed that of the Japanese occupation of southern Manchuria into oblivion, and it is predicted here that the story of Admiral Makaroff's dash out of Port Arthur will prove equally false. If, however, it turns out that the Russians have chosen this desperate move in preference to the apparently inevitable loss of their vessels at Port Arthur, it is assumed that Admiral Togo will easily catch them long before they can reach Vladivostok, which is more than a thousand miles away.

It is regarded as incredible that the Russians could have slipped out without the Japanese knowing it, although it is suggested that they would be allowed to steam outside the protection of their shore batteries before they were attacked. Against the report that the Russians got out on Friday there is a report of an engagement on Sunday, in which the cruiser Diana was damaged. This report is not confirmed, and no details are given.

The refugees warmly praise the officers of the Cincinnati for the treatment accorded them. The officers gave up their cabins for their use. An American miner who was returning to the mines from Ping Yang was arrested as a Russian spy, but was soon released.

WASHINGTON, March 15.-Commander Newton G. Mason of the cruiser Cincinnati telegraphed the Navy Department from Chemulpho, Corea, to-day that he had returned there from Chinnampho, where he went to get Americans. He said that he brought away twenty-five refugees.

PROTESTS FROM NEWCHWANG. Americans Object to the Withdrawal the Gunboat Helena.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. Ymgkow, March 15.-The residents of Newchwang are indignant over what they regard as the hurried withdrawal of the American and British gunboats before the treaty port rights and consular jurisdiction are nullified or even actually imperilled. The Japanese handed over their consulate and other interests to the British, and the Russians did the same to France. Thus all interests at the port are neutralized and none is threatened

It is complained that a premature abandonment of the protection to which the inhabitants are accustomed is inexcusable neglect, inviting depredations against foreigners, especially the Americans and British. An official protest has been sent to the United States by the Americans.

The British Consul is sending a protest to the British Minister at Pekin against the intention of the directors and British managers of the railroad to abandon the Newchwang end of the line. The Consul points out that Great Britain has undertaken the protection of the railroad and that its abandonment will probably lead to its destruction by the Russians if they retreat.

Commander Sawyer of the gunboat Helena was ordered to leave Yingkow as soon as the ice would permit and report to the Admiral of the fleet at Shanghal.

Survivors Tell How One Jap Leaped on Russian Ship and Killed Commander. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

TORIO, March 15 .- A steamship bringing the dead and wounded from the fight at Port Arthur last Thursday has reached Sasebo. The survivors relate an exciting story of a personal encounter between a Japanese sailor and the captain of the Russian destroyer Stereguschtchi. When the Japanese destroyer on which the sailor was closed with the Russian vessel, the Japanese sailor sprang aboard and met the commander emerging from his cabin. They sprang at each other, and the sailor brought his cutlass down upon the head of the Russian, felling him. He endeavored to rise, but the sailor kicked him overpoard and he was drowned.

JAPAN'S NEW WAR TAXES. Americans Interested in the Tobacco Monopoly Part of the Plan.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

Tokio, March 15 .- A special meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday, and it decided the final form of the financial measures previously reported. The added revenues are to come from three sources-increased taxation, public loans and reduction of ordinary expenditures. From the first source, taxation, 65,000,000 ren is expected, as follows: From land tax, nearly 26,000,000 ven; from income and business, each over 5,000,000; from sugar, over 7,000,000; from silk cloth, 4,000,000; from voollen cloth, 2,000,000; from kerosene, 1,000,000; from the salt monopoly, nearly 8,000,000, and from the manufactured tobacco monopoly, 4,000,000 yen. These items will net the Government, because of the expenses of the revenue establishment which must be deducted this year and hereafter, 50,000,000 yen, and other similar ources of revenue will net 8,000,000 yen. From the second general source of revenue, the public loan, 100,000,000 yen will be derived. The Diet will be asked to approve the loan just issued and authorize a further one. From the third source, reduction of ordinary expenditures, from 50,000,000 to 90,000,000 yen will be obtained by administra-

The Jiji Shimpo says the whole scheme is to put the greatest burden on the greatest number, but there are fears of opposition from certain classes to the smaller items and to the salt tax. TELL OF RUSSIAN FRIENDSHIP.

CASSINI'S KINDLY LETTER TO A NEW YORK CLUB.

Backed Up by Speeches From Her Consul-General and Vice-Consul-All at a Russian Evening at the Walderf -Woman's High Power in That Country

The Cooperative Entertainment Club, which aims to give unusual entertainments, had "An Evening in Ruseia" at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. Dr. George Donaldson presided, and twenty Russians, led by Alexander Trofemovitch of the choir of the Russian Orthodox Church of Bridgeport, Conn., sang Russian folk songs before the speech making and in the intermissions.

Count Cassini, the Russian Ambassador, had been invited, but instead sent a letter of regret to Mrs. Roswell D. Hitchcock, the president of the club. The letter, which was read, was as follows:

I wish I could make you know how keenly disappointed I am that my official duties and my physician have conspired to prevent my accepting your very tempting invitation for to-morrow evening. I should thoroughly enjoy a journey in thought to my home country under your sympathetic and skilful guidance. Moreover, I should like to show by my presence at your gathering how very eply I am interested in this effort of your club to bring more of your countrymen and country women to a fuller knowledge and to that keener appreciation which knowledge gives of Russia and the Russian people, and of the sentiments of friendship which ever existed between the two peoples.

Accept my warmest thanks for the very Accept my warmest thanks for the very cordial invitation and for the welcome which I realize awaits me. In your efforts to bring closer together your people and mine in that broad sympathy of thought and action which is the strongest bond two nations can have, you and your associates are performing the highest and noblest mission intrusted to a diplomat—the maintenance and cultivation of friendliness between his own and the country to which he is accredited.

Wishing you and your associates the best success in your splendid work and thanking you for your words of friendliness and cordiality, believe me to be, my dear Mrs. Hitchcock, sincerely yours, Cassini.

Oliver G. J. Schadt, president of the People's College of Philadelphia, opened the oratorical batteries. For twenty years Mr. Schadt was tutor in the family of a member of Alexander II.'s Cabinet in the civil war. Mr. Schadt said that we owe a great debt to Russia and at this time we should show our gratitude. In the civil war, he said, Russia sent her fleet to this country for no other reason than to protect this country from the European Powers. William Everett Hicks made a speech William Everett Hicks made a speech along similar lines and there was some enthusiasm. He was followed by more folk songs and stereoption pictures of Pussion scenes. Baron Schilling, the first Vice-Censul of Russia, then spoke. In part he said: You are aware of the attitude which a part of the American press has taken against my country. This is a non-political evening and I therefore do not wish to speak of the misrepresentations which seem to have misled some of the American newspapers. But does this attitude of certain organs justily express the sentiment of this country? Hardly!

Hardly!
I never have believed it, nor do I expect to have to change my opinion, and I am glad to say that to-night I am more convinced than ever that it would be wrong to judge of the general sentiment by some utterances of the press, and I base my opinion on the firm belief that the American people cannot forget press, and I base my opinion on the firm belief that the American people cannot forget an old friendship which never was clouded; and knowing the American character. I may be permitted to say that every true American who has his heart in the right spot will never forget his friends! And that I am right in saying this, your presence, ladies and gentlemen, is a proof.

I regret not to find the right words to express our thanks for all your sympathles as sincerely as my countrymen here present and I feel it. But more especially I wish to thank the president of the Cooperative Entertainment Club, to whose work and efforts the success of this evening is chiefly due.

But if there were some difficulties, the president of this club did not meet any in the main point, namely, in finding "friends" of Russia, to which your presence here, ladies and gentlemen, so courteously testifies.

and gentlemen, so courteously testifies.

The last speaker of the evening was Nicolas Lodygensky, the Russian Consul-General in this city.

The Russian Consul-General began by impressing on his hearers the fact that Russia 'is a great Christian nation, designed by the Almighty to accomplish a great Christian mission on earth." Then he said that to understand Russia, one must understand that her most characteristic feature is "the general unquestioned and unquestionable recognition of the noble rôle of woman, of the exalted power of the mother, the bride, the sister and the daughter, through the whole wide domain of life, in family, in society and in State." In concluding he said:

I need scarcely explain that being myself in family, in society and in State." In concluding he said:

I need scarcely explain that being myself brought up in the deepest regard to and most sincere recognition of the blessed power of woman in the life of family, of nations and of all humanity, and witnessing this evening that the Russian Christian cause in America is now being taken up by distinguished American ladies. I believe and hope that by means of your moral (non-political) sympathy, the Christian cause will advance.

Now, I venture to assure you that this evidence of your moral sympathy, when duly known in my country, will be received with deepest gratitude. It will be considered as a new page in the glorious history of 130 years of American-Russian friendship.

Begun by Washington and Catherine the Great, continued by all their successors, this friendship had one of its culminating points in the '60's of the mineteenth century, when President Lincoln and Emperor Alexander II. simultaneously hoisted the standard of liberty, abolishing slavery here and serfdom in Russia.

Is it not a most impressive historical event that both these benefactors of humanity should by their innocent blood have paid for the freedom they gave to millions? And I suggest that in this case it is proper to remind you that blood is thicker than water, and that the blood of Lincoln and Alexander II. has cemented forever the traditional friendship between America and Russia.

yesterday with the Mayor, the Metropolitan company and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company agreed to cooperate in operating cars over the Williamsburg Bridge. The conference was attended by Comptroller Grout, Bridge Commissioner Best. President A. E. Orr and Chief Engineer Parsons of the Rapid Transit Commission, President Winter of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, President Vreeland of the Metropolitan company, and Chief Engineer Nichols of the Bridge Department.

The conference ended in the submission of this agreement by Messrs. Winter and Vreeland of this agreement by Messrs. Winter and Vreeland:

Hon. George B. McClellan, Mayor of the city of New York:

DEAR SIR: In compliance with your request that we work out some plan by which the surface lines may be connected with, and operated over, the Williamsburg Bridge at the earliest possible moment with a view to meeting the public demand for transit facilities over that bridge, we now beg to propose the following plan, which, as to most of the connections involved, can be put into operation by July 1 provided the work in charge of the Commissioner of Bridges is completed in time.

Arrangements offered by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.—The cars from the system of that company will be operated to the New York terminus of the bridge, where passengers will be received and delivered. No additional fare will be charged for carrying Brooklyn Rapid Transit passengers over the bridge to and from the New York terminal.

Arrangements offered by the New York City Rallway Company operating the Metropolitan system.—The Metropolitan System will be commetted with the bridge and the Metropolitan cars will be operated to the Brooklyn terminal of the bridge and there receive and deliver passengers. No additional fare will be charged for carrying Metropolitan passengers over the bridge to and from the Brooklyn terminal.

Local Bridge Service.—Bridge cars will be operated between the Brooklyn and New York terminals of the bridge for a fare of three cents or two tickets for five cents.

Recognizing your desire that arrangements for the traffic over the bridge be completed as promptly as possible, we are pre-ognizing your desire that are for the traffic over the bridge be Recognizing your desire that arrangements for the traffic over the bridge be completed as promptly as possible, we are prepared to take up at once with the municipal authorities the working out of the details of this plan, provided it meets with your approval. Yours very respectfully,

E. W. WINTERS, President.

H. U. REELAND, President.

NEW YORK, MARCH 13.

The effect of the agreement is that the two companies will each use two of the six tracks on the bridge for the carrying six tracks on the bridge for the carrying of their passengers to the opposite bridge terminal, while the remaining two tracks will be used for the running of shuttle bridge cars. The power for these shuttle cars will be supplied by the two companies. Terms satisfactory to the two companies. Terms satisfactory to the two companies are yet to be fixed by the Bridge Commission. Mayor McClellan anticipates that there will be no hitch in arranging terms. If the scheme goes through Mr. Vreeland promises to have electricity installed on the Fourteenth street line from Second avenue to Avenue B and down Avenue A to the bridge by July 1. He will also extend the electric power on the Eighth street and East Broadway lines by that time and will have Grand street in readiness to conwill have Grand street in readiness to con-will have Grand street in readiness to connect by the fall.

Comptroller Grout is very much pleased at the proposition of both companies to go over the bridge. It is what he has advocated all along and it was at his suggestion, so he said, that the interests represented by Mr. Vreeland were induced to consider the Williamsburg Bridge proposition at all. One day Mr. Vreeland was in his office on other business and the Comption at all. One day Mr. Vreeiard was in his office on other business and the Comp-troller asked him why his company did not try to get the franchise over the Wil-liamsburg Bridge. He held out the possi-bilities of tapping the big working class district of Williamsburg, all the population of which by this scheme will now have access to all Manhattan or all of it reached by the Metropolitan's cars for five cents.
Mr. Vreeland agreed that it would be a good business proposition.

FIND the chair shine a convenience?

Can't call it a comfort. Haven't you felt a cold shiver when black-daubed hands turned up your trou-

And when you've paid your dime for a sticky coat of turpentine and lampblack you can't feel that your shoes are clean.

The "convenience" is a bit doubtful, too.

Takes ten minutes at least. A three-minute session at home with Regal Shoe Dressing will give you a real shine; a smooth, clean, durable, satiny shine for something under a cent.

(Incidentally a shine that dresses the leather—makes it pliant and supple.)
